What is Dressage?

The word dressage sounds like massage - and comes from the French word dresser, to train. To the untrained eye it looks easy, but like many equestrian sports, it serves the needs of a diverse range of horse lovers. It's an Olympic equestrian sport; yet a basic training discipline for the backyard horse. Dressage teaches a horse to be obedient, willing, supple and responsive. The horse freely submits to the rider's lightest "aids" or body signals, while remaining balanced and energetic. The object of dressage is the harmonious development of the horse in both mind and body, and every horse, regardless of its type or use, can benefit from this training. Dressage principles are a logical, step-by-step progression from simple to increasingly complex movements. More and more is asked of the horse as it becomes mentally and physically ready to respond to these demands.

The graceful movements performed in competition may look effortless, but are the result of years of training. The aids should be virtually imperceptible. A squeeze of the calf, a closing of the fingers, a shifting of the rider's weight in the saddle should be all that is necessary to tell the horse what is required.

Dressage requires the horse and rider to combine the strength and agility of gymnastics with the elegance and beauty of ballet. The result is truly the best blend of sport and art. The highlight of a dressage competition is the Musical Freestyle in which the rider creates and choreographs to music an original ride of compulsory figures and movements.

The Arena

A standard arena measures 20 meters by 60 meters (about 65.8 feet x 197.5 feet). Some of the lower level tests may use a small 20 meters by 40 meters arena.

The Tests

The tests for each level are written so that there is a way to consistently measure performance. The judges are looking for accuracy of the transitions (changes of gait), obedience, suppleness of the horse, quality of the gaits, and the rider's use of aids. All movements and certain transitions from one gait to another are numbered on the judge's sheet. They are marked from 0 to 10, 0 being the lowest mark (virtually nothing of the movement performed) and 10 (excellent) the highest. Following the test, the rider's individual movement scores are added up and a final score is calculated as a percentage of the possible score that the rider could achieve for that particular test. The highest percentage wins the class.

Musical Rides

The Musical Kür or Freestyle is a ride that is choreographed for the horse and contains required movements while being artistically pleasing and technically correct. Pas de Deux is an artistic program created by two riders to present their horses to their best advantage in an artistic, musical context. Mirror image, point-counter-point and in-line movements can be used. The Quadrille tests are designed for teams of four horses and riders with or without music, depending on the test.

The Movements

Horses and riders are judged on how well they perform certain movements in tests that match each horse's level of training. These are:

* Extensions: The horse will lengthen his stride for the rider on demand. This movement is most exciting at the trot. When done correctly, the horse seems to float across the arena.

* Lateral movements: The horse will show its suppleness by going forward first and either moving sideways or moving parts of its body sideways for its rider.

* Pirouettes: In this dramatic upper level movement, the horse will turn in place at a canter.

* Flying Changes: The most highly trained horses will appear to "skip" across the arena at a canter switching the leading front and hind hooves.

* Piaffe: This is a highly cadenced trot-in-place. The horse will spring lightly from one diagonal pair of legs to the other with an even rhythm and a definable moment of suspension. It is the highest degree of competitive collection demanded of the horse.

* Passage: The horse appears to float, springing from one diagonal to the other while maintaining its body in a perfectly straight line. In effect this movement is a collected trot in slow motion.

Watching Dressage

The key to enjoying dressage is to watch the rides and try to see how they differ and why one person's score is better than another's. It takes many years of training and great concentration of both the horse and rider to perform well in a test. You should expect to see calm, obedient, smooth rides where the horse's ears are forward or turned towards the rider, and clearly "listening" to the rider's instructions, although no actual words will be spoken during a test. The horse should look happy.

Spectator Pointers

Riding a dressage test requires a great deal of concentration on the part of the horse and rider. The following guidelines will help to ensure that all riders have the opportunity to achieve their very best performance.

* Avoid running, shouting or sudden movements while a horse is in the ring.

* Applaud only after the rider has completed the final salute.

* You may speak in a normal tone, but do not shout or wave.

* Spectators must stay back from the white fence surrounding the competition arena.

* It is best to leave your dog at home, but if you have your dog with you, keep it on a leash at all times

Picayune Strand State Forest

Picayune Strand State Forest is in the heart of an ecosystem called the Big Cypress Basin. The majority of this forest is under water during periods of considerable rainfall. The forest is comprised of cypress strands, wet prairie, and pine flatwoods in the lowlands and subtropical hardwood hammocks in the uplands. The northern section of the Belle Meade Tract contains many second growth South Florida slash pine, with some remnant trees being over 100 years old. The forest provides habitat for many species of wildlife making wildlife viewing a popular activity. The following species have been sighted in the forest: black bear, bald eagle, wood stork, Big Cypress fox squirrel and swallow-tailed kites. Although Florida panthers are rarely visible, they do leave tracks for the observant visitor. Female panthers have borne cubs in the state forest in recent years.

Picayune Strand State Forest offers many recreational opportunities. A 22 mile horse trail winds across the Belle Meade Tract from Miller Boulevard to Benfield Rd. All horses in the forest must have current negative Coggins Test results, proof of which is to be carried by each rider. Horses may be rented at M and H stables which is located 2 miles south of Exit 15 off Interstate 75 at 2750 Newman Drive. Also on Newman Drive is Everglades Ranch, a boarding facility. They offer daily or overnight boarding if you wish to vacation at the Picayune Strand State Forest with your own horse. An oak shaded primitive camping area can be found near the middle of the trail.

20 signs your Dressage test needs work . . .

1. Under judges remarks she writes only: "Nice braid job."
2. Horse confuses dressage arena rail for a cavaletti; exits at K.
3. Your circle's shape reminds the judge that he should pick up eggs on the way home.
4. Your serpentine was perfect, except that it was supposed to be a straight centerline.
5. Sitting trot has caused some fillings to be loosened in lower molars.
6. Your horse believes "free walk" means leaving the arena and heading towards the nearest patch of grass.
7. Your working trot had you working harder than your horse.
8. In your salute, your inadvertently use your whip hand causing your horse to perform airs above the ground.
9. Your walk seems to be more "rare" than "medium."
10. Impulsion improves only after the horse sees monsters in the decorative shrubbery near letters.
11. Your horse's response to the canter aid is "Can't, er, what?"
12. Your twenty meter circle involved jumping the rail twice.
13. Your halt took place in the judge's lap, instead of at X.
14. Your thoroughbred interpreted elasticity to involve trying to kick himself in the head with his back feet during the working canter.
15. Your horse entered the arena at A, and M, and H, and B...
16. Judge's comments include words like "unusual, dramatic, explosive, and tragic"
17. Leg-yields involve your leg yielding before the horse does.
18. Free walk was interpreted by your Arabian to involve prancing, a rear, and a few bucks.
19. The judge asks you to take the broken letters with you when you leave.
20. Voodoo dolls of your horse were found in the possession of the show's grounds manager.

A Perspective on Dressage

By Roiya Albert

Since I was a young child, I always loved jumping. I would watch the competitions live or on TV. Either way it looked like the ultimate thrill. I asked my mom for jumping lessons. I had already been taking lessons at a nearby barn for about 10 years, but my mom insisted that I take Dressage lessons, before I began jumping. I thought Dressage was uneventful and the hardest type of riding in existence. I knew that it involved a lot of work and concentration. I went to a couple of Dressage shows, and I thought it to be absolutely the most boring thing I had ever seen. I had never seen so many circles in my life. Slowly as I got more into it, I realized that Dressage had a lot more to offer than I thought. Dressage could give me clarity to all the questions that had never been answered before.

I would watch my instructor ride her 4th level Dressage horse. It was beautiful to watch as they seemed to move together as one. However, with all the bad habits I was just informed I had, it seemed so impossible for me to achieve that oneness. I was learning that many of the commands shouted to me in lessons of the past (heels down, hold on with your legs, balance...) could actually counteract each other. For example, a rider can not have true balance if their heels are down, their seat in the saddle, and they are gripping with their legs. Gripping with your legs makes you bounce out of the saddle and makes your heels sneak up. You have to learn to release your grip on the saddle to be truly balanced. After all, we have more weight from our hips up than our legs down. We have to let the weight from our hips hold us in the saddle. Dressage is really about paying attention to detail.

There are six steps that any rider needs to have:

1. Relaxation
2. Balance
3. Following the motion of the horse
4. Applying the aids
5. Coordination of the aids
6. Influencing

Dressage does not allow you to skip any of these steps. It will give you a solid foundation and prepare you to move on to whatever field of riding you may wish. As for myself, I did eventually move on to jumping and with the Dressage training I had received, I was jumping 3' 6" within one week. I enjoy jumping, but Dressage is my first love.

One can ask, do I want to work on my horse or with my horse? Do I want to continue wondering what is wrong with my horse or am I willing to consider that I may be part of the problem? Do I want to push myself above and beyond and learn how to work as one with my horse? Do I want to be a passenger or a rider? If you answered yes to these questions then Dressage maybe the answer to your needs.
