Rollo is a very special puppy. Rollo, who is now about 4 months old, came to us with his mother and siblings when he was only days old. He and his four other siblings were healthy, big, and very active. Their mom, Gypsi took great care of her pups and they grew quickly! Gypsi is a Collie/Shepherd mix and the father, we are guessing, was either a Newfoundland or St. Bernard mix. Yes, we think he is going to be a very big dog!

Rollo is a fabulous little guy! He is so affectionate, loving and playful. He absolutely loves other dogs - especially big dogs - and has absolutely no fear upon meeting them. You can really see his desire to be with them come out! He was also raised with cats and is crate trained!

When Rollo was about 8 weeks old, things got scary. He began having seizures three days after being adopted. One of his siblings, Aquira, also started having seizures 24 hours after Rollo did. Since Aquira was still with her foster mom, she was immediately rushed to the vet and the seizures were stopped with Phenobarbital. Her blood was checked and showed signs of an infection with anemia (lowered red blood cell count). She was put on a course of antibiotics as well.

Meanwhile, for her little brother Rollo it was not so smooth. His new vet did not give him any medication to stop the seizures and kept him for 5 days at the hospital to observe him. He seized for 5 days! Finally, we were able to convince his new owner to please return him to us, as she did not want to change vets. He came back to us and was immediately put on the same course of Phenobarbital as Aquira, along with the antibiotics. Thankfully, he had no further seizures.

He has now been off of the Phenobarbital for 2 weeks (as of April 19) and no further seizures have occurred. Our vet told us from the beginning that with juvenile seizures, it is most likely that they will outgrow them before the age of 6 months. This is what we're hoping and expecting. Neither of the puppies has any sign of infection lingering and are back to acting like happy, healthy, "puppies!"

However, due to their history they both need a very special owner who isn't afraid of their past problems, and is prepared to handle any additional seizures if they do occur and is committed to caring for Rollo for the rest of his life.

If you think you're that special person for Rollo, then please visit our web site at www.CollierRescue.com or call us on (239) 450-6301 for more information.

No Web Site, No Problem! A Special Bonus for Business Advertisers!

Did you know that even though you may not have a web site, people can still find your business on the web if you are an advertiser in Everything Equine? Since each issue of Everything Equine is posted on the web, your business can be "Googled" and the issue of Everything Equine that you advertised in will be in the search results. Sometimes it takes a while for the web crawlers to collect the data they need to provide your information in a search, but they will find it. For example, If I searched for Native Wynd Farm, the Febuary issue of Everything Equine is the 3rd result provided. The draw back is that the person searching will not know which page to look for and may give up before they locate Native Wynd Farm on page 12. However, there is an easy remedy for this situation. Going forward, on page 2, there will be a business index. If the prospective client has enough patience to at least scroll down to the 2nd page, he or she can easily see on what page the business is listed.

Horseback Safaris

Horseback Safaris - Standard one-hour, two-hour, or three-hour horseback safaris are available daily. Horseback Safaris can be arranged for riders with varying levels of experience. All guests should be at least 12 years of age; 10 years of age is an acceptable age with proven riding experience. Guests weighing more than 275 pounds will need to be assessed by our Equestrian Director before they are allowed to take a Horseback Safari. Call-in reservations are recommended in order to assure that we and our horses are ready for you.

A favorite with visitors is our two-night "Crescent J Cattle Drive Weekend Safari," which includes some training in Florida Cowhunter skills of ridin', ropin' and cow cuttin'. (Florida cattlemen weren't "cowboys" because hunting those wild Spanish-descent cattle in Florida's woods and swamps was a man's job, they said.) Choice of campground depends on weather, type of group and recommendation of the riding instructors.

Another favorite is similar, but shorter – an Overnight Trail Ride Safari combined with a next-day "Rawhide Roundup." More time is spent riding the wilderness trails of Forever Florida and learning about nature, less on cowpoke skills.

Corporate Co-workers, Schoolteachers, Professional Club, Flying Clubs, School Groups, Church Groups, Families, Friends, Scout troops or multi-troop Camporees – there are activities and a campground on Forever Florida or the Crescent J Ranch that are just right for a bonding experience. See the Facilities and Events page for more details.

From a small primitive one-troop Scout Camp on the Crescent J that has been used by Girl and Boy Scouts for more than 30 years, we expanded to a remote but up-scale campground 'way back in the wilderness of Forever Florida, then added two campgrounds in between and most recently, a large area "up front" (near the highway) that comfortably holds up to twenty Scout troops for a big Camporee.

Variations on these basic campouts and safaris can be worked out with our staff.

I recently went to a barrel race that was supposed to be a fun show. Sadly all I heard from the kids were how they were "showing their horse who's boss" and kicking harder. It was weird for me to hear and watch this because I always thought that someone gets into horses for the love of horses. My horse has always been my friend, an animal that could be there for me the way no person could. The thought of kicking and whipping my horses would never be an option. Now, I am not saying that I would let my horse walk all over me. There is definitely a respect level with our relationship. I have proven to her that I can be the alpha leader, and for that she has a great deal of respect for me and I for her. She doesn't do things out of fear. She does them because I'm asking her, and I explain it clearly so she understands. Horses love to do what you ask, as long as they feel that they physically can do what you're asking. It's just a matter of knowing how to communicate it to them. I just can't help but wonder why we need bigger bits, spurs, tie-downs and all these other contraptions to control our horses. Shouldn't it be about communicating with your horse; shouldn't it be fun for you and the horse?

When I watch professional barrel racing, the majority of the time the rider never really kicks hard or yanks on the reins. I can tell just by watching that that horse knows the pattern and the horse responds to the lightest cues, many times unseen. Wouldn't it be nice to watch all kids riding like that? But how? I am sure parents would love to see their child riding in tune with his or her horse, but may not have the knowledge to teach that level of harmony. Having knowledge, I found, will eliminate FEAR and FRUSTRATION, which could lead to inhumane actions (intended or unintended) on the part of the person, or worse, getting out of horse activities entirely.

At a local show I saw a horse, pinned up in a corner of the arena, rearing, kicking and trying to lunge out at the rider as she tried to mount. Due to the horse's excessive rearing and bucking while the child was trying to mount outside of the arena, the adults figured they might have a better chance getting the kid on in the arena. So, the horse was led in the arena and cornered. After asking around, I was told that the behavior is justified by the fact that the horse is 'young', 'inexperienced', 'injured' and 'the girl is wearing a helmet, so she will be ok'. It did not make sense to me that a helmet was going to help this girl out of a possibly unsafe experience for her and a terrifying experience for her horse. I feel helmets are made to protect your head IN CASE something happens (like a buck from a bee sting!) and you fall from your horse, not as a magical safety device to a horse that is scared to death and fighting with all he has left. This particular horse may have been young, but he was experienced enough to know what was in store for him. He was already bleeding from the mouth and pastern. The arena/show was not a pleasurable experience for him and he did not want to be there. I feel a little knowledge and training for the human will bring out a level of trust and respect from the horse. He can learn that what happened in the arena before will not happen again. He will be a sane and SAFER horse for his rider. Horse activities should be fun for all involved, even the horses!

Horses love to play. They can enjoy doing the activities that we have chosen for them such as show jumping or barrel racing if asked in a way they understand. A horse should LOVE his job. If he feels like you are a threat he will react as such. It's all basic horse psychology. Horses are not people. They don't think like us, act like us, or communicate like us. Horses are not predators; they are prey animals. We are the hunters and they are the hunted. They must be perceptive to danger or they will be the first one eaten by the lion. Just by becoming the leader a horse could want to participate because he now knows that what is being said is important. The way horses establish leadership is simply who moves whose feet! It's so easy and it could help so many horse and human relationships. I first learned to be a leader to my horse when I started the Parelli Natural Horsemanship program. Parelli got me started, but I have learned from many other sources. Information about how to establish a respectful and FUN relationship with your horse can be found in at-home study packets, the web and at local barns, such as Cloud 9 Ranch in Naples.

I have seen kids start with horses because they have a love for animals, but because of frustration, they are beating these animals they used to LOVE. This could all change, with just simple knowledge. Let's start changing what is put IN a child's head, rather than relying on what is put on them. Helmets may protect from a fall or two, but a helmet will do nothing for a broken

(This poem was written for my father who drove and supported me through my high school rodeo years. It is an analogy)

Thank-you.

Had it not been for you-

I would not have made it this far.

Surely your faith in me pushed me along.

Coaching me through the rough times,
Omitting your own concerns to help me with mine.
Without a doubt you have to be the Greatest father in the world.

I hope that one day I can repay you.

Realizing I cannot develop without it, you gave me your Loving support and are always

Standing by me, when the barrels are down or the time is slow.

For when I'm feeling "lucky", you're

Always there, ready to rodeo

Valuing not your own wants, but mine.

Ordinary people do not understand my importance of Riding, but WE understand and know

It's the "JAZZ" that gets us through when our stomach
Turns to knots when our name booms over the speaker.

Every time I enter the arena, I not only want to win, but to please you.

For it is your time, support, effort

And willingness to be there when the day was bad, Never once doubting my ability, that helps make my dreams come true.

back. I have learned that what goes in my head will protect me from dangerous situations. I find horses can be safe and predictable when I UNDERSTAND them for what they are, prey animals.

I just wanted to share my experience, because I know there are people out there who feel the same, and I just want everyone to be happy, successful, and able to have fun with the animals they love.

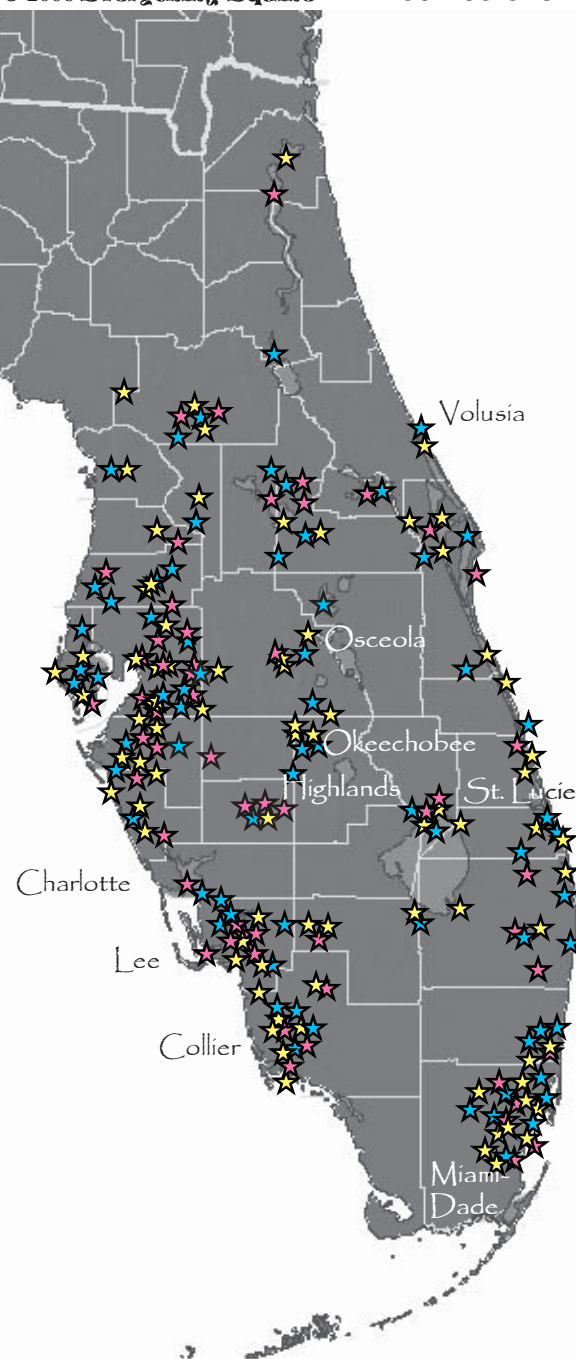

By, Claire Devisse
